OLD MASTERS

Fear no more the heat of the sun
 Nor the furious winter's rage;
 Thou thy worldly task hast done,
 Home art gone, and taken thy wages;

Golden lads and girls all must,
 As chimney sweepers, come to dust.
 Fear no more the frown of the great;
 Thou art past the tyrant's stroke;
 Care no more to clothe and eat;
 To thee the reed is as the oak;
 The scepter, learning, physic, must
 All follow this, and come to dust.

Fear no more the lightning flash,
 Nor the all-dreaded thunder-tone;
 Fear not slander, censure rash;
 Thou hast finished joy and morn;
 All lover young, all lovers must,
 Consign to thee, and come to dust.
 —Shakespeare: Dirge from "Cymbeline."

Amboy Woman's Plans Win Prize

Honorable mention with $5 cash prize has been awarded Mrs. Will Fitzpatrick of Amboy in the Farmstead Improvement Contest, conducted by the Orange Judd Illinois Farmer. A list of awards appear in the current issue of this well known farm publication. This contest is conducted to stimulate interest in improvements on the farm and in the farm home. Prizes are awarded for greatest relative improvement secured rather than for largest outlay of money. Hundreds of farm men and women took part in this competition. Their descriptions of improvements made were passed upon by a board of judges and final ratings were made by Professor Frank P. Hanson of the University of Illinois.

Improvements described in Mrs. Fitzpatrick's article include installation of bathroom with complete equipment and modern septic tank to take care of kitchen and bathroom wastes. A water softening device was installed to provide soft water for kitchen and laundry use. A back porch of the farm house was screened in and provided a great convenience especially in the summer. New linoleum on the dining room floor and new wall paper throughout the house are among interior improvements listed, and the liberal use of paint and varnish added greatly to the appearance of the renovated farm home. The exterior was not neglected either. Mrs. Fitzpatrick describes rather extensively the planting of flowers and shrubbery and the development of a farm orchard.

A similar contest open to farm men and women everywhere is being conducted this year by the Orange Judd Illinois Farmer with cash prizes totaling $1000 for greatest relative improvement on farm and in the farm home. Participation in the contest involves no obligation on the part of the contestant except that of enrollment.

Feather Fried Cakes.
 Three tablespoons butter, 1 cup sugar, 2 eggs, 3/4 cup milk, 3/4 cups pastry flour, 4 1/2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 scant teaspoon salt, 3/4 teaspoon powdered nutmeg.

Cream butter and gradually beat in sugar. Add yolks of eggs well beaten. Mix and sift flour, salt, baking powder and nutmeg and add alternately with milk to first mixture. Fold in whites of eggs beaten until stiff and dry. Put about one-third of the mixture on a well floured molding board and roll very lightly with a well floured rolling pin into a sheet about 1/4 inch thick. Cut with butter and fry in deep hot fat. When fried cake comes to top of fat let brown on one side, then turn and brown on the other side. Remove from fat and drain on brown paper.

Handle fried cake dough as lightly as possible during the rolling and cutting. Be sure to flour the cutter well before pressing into the dough. The centers can be fried as they are, making tiny balls when done, or they may be worked into the remaining dough to roll and shape again.

Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Mañ entertained at dinner Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. John D. Flint.

Alumni Dance Most Successful Affair

The Nurses Alumni of the Katherine Shaw Bethel Hospital sponsored a most successful and enjoyable dance, an annual affair, last evening in Downing hall.

The attendance was large and the hall was attractively decorated with softly shaded colored lights, and balloons in many colors were fastened in bunches to the lights. Later in the evening these were used as favors and more of them were mysteriously produced from the shadow of Old Glory, causing much merriment. Many of them were broken in the scramble for them and this was one case in which the decorations disappeared like snow before sun. Serpentine streamers in many colors also added to the pretty effect. There was "good" music, a "good" attendance, a "good" crowd and best of all "good" door receipts, making everyone happy and assuring much help to charity this year, as the Alumni dance funds outside of expenses, are used in helping the sick and unfortunate. The Alumni dance is now an assured annual affair and it is whispered that the dance or ball next year will be more pretentious, although it is doubtful if a more enjoyable evening will be experienced by all who may attend.

W. R. C. Meeting And Washington Tea
 Dixon Relief Corps, No. 218, Auxiliary to the Grand Army of the Republic, held their regular afternoon meeting Monday, February 28th, in Grand Army hall.

Two applications for membership were presented. Mrs. Demorest, chairman of relief, reported disposing of two comforters and two rag rugs, clothing distributed to the amount of $15, and several calls made on the sick. The relief committee will have charge of a doughnut sale some time in March. $5 was donated to the Boy Scout fund. A silk flag and holder was presented to the Gap Grove school on Friday, Feb. 18th. A number of members accompanied Mrs. Harry Jones, the president. A splendid program was given by the pupils before the presentation of the flag by the Past Patriotic Instructor of the Corps, Mrs. Lella Bush.

At the close of the short business session of the Corps a Colonial Tea was held. Gen. George Washington, impersonated by Mrs. Frances Schrock and Mrs. Mary May) arrived on time and were introduced to the audience. A very entertaining program followed, numerous old time selections on the "Fiddle" played by Charles Hey, interspersed with several vocal solos by Harry Jones, readings by Miss LaFerne Richardson, and two dances by Little Miss Virginia Wheeler. Then George and Martha, danced to the strains of a dreamy waltz played by Mr. Hey and a quadrille by members of the Corps followed after which tea was served by the distinguished guests and a very pleasant social hour was enjoyed.

To Give Sacred Concert at Rock Falls

The Young Peoples choir and Sunday Evening orchestra of the Dixon M. E. church will give a sacred concert in the Congregational church at Rock Falls Sunday evening under the direction of Prof. Johnston, who has charge of the musical activities of the local church. This evening Prof. Johnston's pupils in Rock Falls, assisted by six Dixon pupils, will give a recital in Rock Falls, and on Friday evening his local pupils will give a recital in his studio in the Dixon Trust & Savings Bank building, to which the public is invited.

Practical Club in Delightful Meeting

The Practical club had an unusually good attendance in the meeting held at the home of Mrs. A. E. Marth on Ottawa avenue yesterday afternoon.

The program included a quiz by Mrs. L. E. Jacobson, which carried a number of new and interesting questions.

The paper of the afternoon was given by Mrs. Leon Hart, the topic being, "A Tour of the Prairies." It proved to be original and most interesting.

esting, also instructive, for Mrs. Hart reviewed much of the early history of the state of Illinois and also told much of the early times in and around Dixon, giving the subject an intimate and delightful personal touch, which made it most enjoyable to all.

The two little daughters of the hostess, Gladys and Helen Marth, each gave a pretty piano selection. Mrs. Marth then served most appetizing refreshments during the pleasant social interval, the attractive and artistic decorations in green, gold and white heralding St. Patrick's day.

Beautiful Morning Wedding in Maytown

A beautiful early morning wedding was celebrated at 8 o'clock Tuesday at St. Mary's Catholic church at Maytown, with Rev. Father C. J. Kirk, officiating at nuptial/high mass, uniting in the holy bonds of matrimony, James M. Buckley, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. James Buckley of this city, and Miss Gertrude M. Goy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Goy of Maytown.

Miss Helen Meade presided at the organ and played the wedding march.

the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin, as the bridal party approached the altar, and also accompanied Mrs. Ed Meeks and Luther Carrington in their beautiful solos during mass.

The bride was attended by Miss Veronia Kellen, R. N., of Aurora, who was maid of honor, and the bridegroom was attended by his brother, Frank Buckley, as best man.

The bride was beautifully gowned in a delicate shade of tan georgette over silk, with hat to match; while her bridesmaid wore blue georgette over silk with hat to harmonize. The bride carried bride's roses and lilies and the bridesmaid carried pink roses and carnations. After the ceremony at the church the bridal party and intimate friends and relatives were entertained with a wedding breakfast at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Goy. The tables were beautifully decorated with cut flowers in pink and white.

After a short wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Buckley will return to Dixon where they will reside. Both are popular and highly respected young people with hosts of friends who at this time wish them every happiness and much prosperity.

TRIBUTE TO A MAN WHO FAILED.

Just exactly what is a man's real "life work"? How are we to tell whether he has made a success or a failure of it?

Those questions seem to be strange, perhaps. Yet, not long ago, in more than a dozen states, business was stopped so that the people might pay tribute to the memory of a man who failed utterly to gain his ends and who went down to an overwhelming defeat after years of heart-breaking struggle.

The man was Robert E. Lee, one-time commander of the armed forces of the southern Confederacy.

Our nation does not worship failures. We have no palms to spare for those who could not succeed. Yet—Robert E. Lee is one of our heroes. Why—since he failed?

Perhaps it is because we are growing to realize that there are failures more dazzling than any success. Perhaps we are coming to understand that it is not altogether what a man does that counts; that how he does it may be more important.

Time has swallowed up the mighty armies that struggled along the banks of the Rappahannock, the Mississippi and the James. The hosts that fought at Gettysburg, at Shiloh and at Chancellorsville have marched on into the dim mists of the past, so that blue and gray uniforms alike are hardly distinguishable. Green grass covers the remains of the trenches at Cold Harbor, and Fort Sumter is only a relic. The battle flags are in museums.

Yet Lee has not been swallowed by time. The cannon smoke has drifted away only to reveal his heroic figure looming larger, more majestic than ever. The country has forgotten, gladly, that he fought for a lost cause; it remembers only the valor, the skill and the shining manliness with which he fought.

He rode, to be sure, at the head of a lost battalion that marched for a bivouac over the borders of the land of darkness; but, en route, he taught us that there can be failures which shine as gloriously as any success.

WHAT THE RAILROADS DO.

When the average man sets out to discuss America's present prosperity, you'll usually find him mentioning such things as improved manufacturing systems, better banking facilities, high wages and efficient advertising as the chief contributing causes.

Increased efficiency on the railroads, during 1926, meant prompter and more reliable delivery of factory products to the retailer. This, in turn, enabled trade and manufacturing to develop the practices of "hand to mouth" buying, and this, in its turn, conserved credit and made it more flexible.

The railroads did their job better last year than ever before. We can thank them for much of our prosperity.

COLLEGE LIFE.

Seventeen universities have banned students' automobiles as detrimental to morals. After the students had been driving half the night, it seems they couldn't be driven to work. . . . When some of the boys ended their university careers the automobile was the only engineering they knew. . . . A fellow who had tried all evening to find a girl who'd ride in a flivver wouldn't be interested in any more experiments the next day. . . . The student whose car had four punctures and a leak in the gas tank refused to be bothered with economics. . . . The young man with the Rolls-Royce couldn't get worked up over sociology when he spent all his time declining invitations from people to ride in his car.

WHEN A PRESIDENT RELAXES.

What does a president talk about at the breakfast table? Offhand, you might think his conversation would be weighty in the extreme—and, no doubt, sometimes it is.

But President Coolidge had a Texas political leader in for breakfast the other day—and they talked chiefly about Rebecca Bradley, the Texas co-ed who robbed a bank recently!

Presidents, like the rest of us, need to relax in small talk occasionally. But poor Rebecca! Little did she ever think she'd get herself talked about at the White House.

READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE

The little smoke bowl drifted 'round and finally settled on the ground. The Tnymites grew quite dizzy 'cause it seemed to rock, and then, they felt it slowly stop dead still. They all climbed out in quite a spill. Said Scouty, "Gee, how good it seems to be on earth again."

When all the bunch had left the bowl, it changed its form. They watched it roll away like a great big ball and finally disappear. Wee Clovny waved his funny hat, and said, "I'm glad we're rid of that, and now let's look around and see what we can find down here."

Said Coppy, "It should be real grand, if this is Mother Goose' own land. I wish that we could find her. Maybe she would show us 'round."

And then another voice replied, "Well, nothing's gained, if nothing's tried. Let's start to look 'cause that's the only way she can be found."

And so the bunch began to walk, and mid smiles of cheer and heaps of talk. It really was a wondrous treat to be down from the air. At first their legs seemed rather weak, and after while they picked up strength, so no one seemed to care.

A little hill was just ahead. Before they reached it Scouty said, "Oh, look! Somebody's coming. It's a little girl and boy. Perhaps they'll be glad to let us stay upon this hill of fun and play. Let's run right up and ask them." Course this filled them all with joy.

The girl and boy soon reached the hill, and each put out a welcome hand. "We're glad to see you," said the boy. "You give up quite a trip!"

"And who are you?" asked Clovny, loud. "To meet you we are very proud." And then the little girl replied, "Why, we are Jack and Jill."

SAINT and SINNER

As Faith went about her household duties on Monday and Tuesday of the week before the trial was to start, she could not rid herself of the conviction that old Phil, the crippled beggar, was somehow connected with the murder of Ralph Cluny, for whose death her beloved little sister was so unjustly held.

Only a few more days, and nothing, nothing, had been done. Churchill would hardly give her a minute of his valuable time any more, for she made him flush uncomfortably as her great, tragic brown eyes searched his cold, grey gaze for a ray of genuine hope which she never saw in them.

After all, what did it really matter to Churchill if he lost the case? The newspapers had agreed unanimously that Banning, the district attorney, would have a walk-over. Reporters, now gathering from all over the country, had devoted columns to summing up the circumstantial evidence against Cherry and Chris Wiley, dismissing Churchill's efforts to sustain Cherry's story with what was little more than a shrug. That they—the reporters and special writers—all liked Cherry, wrote sympathetically and even exultingly of the plight in which she had found herself on the eve of marriage with an old man when she was infatuated with a handsome young "sheik," would not count at all with stern old Judge Grimshaw, who would undoubtedly do his best to keep the jury from deciding the case purely on the basis of Cherry's extreme youth and delectable beauty and charm.

Bob's search of the city record of beggar's licenses had, of course, netted him nothing at all, since he had no idea of the crippled Phil's last name.

On Tuesday afternoon, Faith was hurrying through the downtown district on her way to keep one of her clandestine appointments with Madams Denise, a portfolio of sketches under her arm, when she suddenly decided to go out of her way to pass the small city square known as Lincoln Park.

Her disappointment when she found no crippled beggar offering hard head pencils and stale, soiled packages of chewing gum to pedestrians battling the late December gale was sickeningly keen, but her determination to do something definite—no matter how little—made her overcome her natural timidity and approach a blue-coated policeman who was stationed on the corner near old Kelly's news stand.

"Old Phil, the cripple?" The big policeman's cold-reddened cheeks bulged in a smile. "Sure, I know him. Ain't seen him around for several days. Reckon he's sick again. Sickly old bird. Ain't been just right in the head since his daughter died."

"Oh, so his daughter is dead?" Faith asked, trying to keep her smile and voice casual. "It must be terrible to be old and sick and crippled when one is all alone in the world."

"Sure, you said a mouthful, miss," the officer of the law agreed. "His daughter died down in Peach Tree Hollow somewhere. After that Phil went down hill at a great rate. Near by went blind. Funny old coot—that Phil," he added thoughtfully. Then he stooped to look keenly into Faith's eyes.

"What might you be wanting of old Phil, miss? Any kin to him?"

"No," Faith shook her head, smiling. "Just interested in him. I'd like to find him and—do something for him if he's so sick and all alone. Could you tell me how to find him?"

The policeman raised his hat with the rounded end of his stick and thoughtfully scratched his thick black hair. "Now, blessed if I could. Why, miss, I don't even know his last name! But Callahan—he's a traffic cop now over on Main and Columbus—might be able to tell you. He had this beat before I did, and him and Phil used to pass a lot of time spinning yarns. You might go see Callahan. He's on duty now."

TOMORROW: Faith penetrates still further into the mystery of the crippled beggar.

Altogether there are thirty-one men with Illinois addresses who will have a chance to represent the Purple on the gridiron next fall.

Chicago and suburbs furnishes most of the talent, but downstate communities also are represented. DeKalb Teachers Team
Entered in K. C. Match

DeKalb, Ill., March 2.—(AP)—Supporters of the Northern Illinois State Teachers College basketball team plan to send it to the annual court tourney at Kansas City. The DeKalb team lost but one game during the season just closed and won eighteen.

Defenses were handed such teams as Columbia College, St. Bede College, Indiana Normal, Armour Tech, Crane Tech, Milton College, Ypsilanti Normal, Wartburg College, Aurora College, Arkansas Aggies, Valparaiso University and Chicago "Y" College. The lone defeat came at the hands of Armour Tech on the DeKalb floor by an 18 to 17 count. Armour was later decisively beaten in Chicago.

The team is coached by Roland A. Colwell, former athletic director of Des Moines University and graduate of the University of Illinois coaching school. The DeKalb Teachers scored 755 points against 375 for their adversaries. Only once during the season did they fail to make less than twenty points in a battle, that being in the Armour game.

New York, March 2.—(AP)—Babe Ruth arrived from the west this morning and smilingly announced he would hold a conference with Colonel Jacob Ruppert of the Yankees regarding his demand for $200,000 salary for two years.

The Babe said he hadn't any doubts but that his conference with the management would result satisfactorily.

He acted as though he didn't have a care in the world and grinned broadly at the warmth of his reception.

Throughout the Old Testament the coming of Christ is prophesied. This picture story of "The Life of Christ" begins with the birth of John the Baptist, the forerunner of the Savior. New York, March 2.—(AP)—The possibility that Tex Rickard or any other promoter in New York state may be able to charge any price he wishes for fight tickets popped up today in the statement of Louis Marshall, attorney for New York ticket agencies in the recent successful fight before the U. S. Supreme Court against the state's right to limit the prices for theater tickets charged by agencies.

The state boxing commission has limited maximum prices of fight tickets to $7.50, $10, $15 and $22, according to the importance of the card. State officials said the courts would have to pass on the matter if the commission's rules should be violated.

After Experiencing Scare

Washington, March 2.—(AP)—Willie Hoppe, world's 182 ball line billiard champion, has opened the championship tournament here with a victory but he was given quite a scare by the youthful Matsuyama of Japan.

The opening match in the 12 day tournament was won by Hoppe last night, but it took the champion 19 innings to round out the 400 billiards while the Japanese was checking up 358.

Two matches were scheduled for today and tonight with Matsuyama meeting Velker Cochran of the U. S. in the afternoon contest and Edward Horemans of Belgium meeting Europe's champion, Felix Grange of France tonight.

Shuffle Callahan Will Attempt Form Reversal

Chicago, March 2.—(AP)—Shuffle Callahan, the South Chicago middleweight with a 1225 record of ten knockouts in eleven fights, starts his 1927 list tomorrow night against Jack Malone of St. Paul in the latter's home town.

Three of the knockouts were inflicted upon Shuffle himself in his last three matches of the year; and after he had waved the towel to Walcott Langford he talked of going back to his trucking job for good. A new manager inspired Callahan with new hope, however, and tomorrow night they will again put his wild southpaw on display.

Record Crowd Will See
Sharkey-McTigue Fight

New York, March 2.—(AP)—A crowd rivaling in size the record throng saw Jimmy Maloney whip Jack Delaney, will be in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night when Jack Sharkey of Boston clashes with Mike McTigue, of the rejuvenated right hand wallop, in a 15 round elimination match in Tex Rickard's heavyweight tournament.

Indications are that another jam of 18,000 will be in the Garden. With the top seat price set at $22, the record gate of $200,000 set two weeks ago may be equalled.

Bits of News

in Their Camps

(BY THE AP)
Bad weather for two days held training activities of the White Sox to country hikes, but Manager Schalk hopes to get his first look at the rookies today. His veterans are expected soon.

The Cubs hope to engage in a five inning practice game by the end of the week. John Dillheart, promising southpaw, has shown some wise season curves in workouts at Catalina.

After a six day training grind at Paso Robles, Calif., Manager Bush of the Pirates announces his pitching staff is in great shape.

Charley horses and aching backs resulted in orders for a "witch hazel" session in the Orlando camp of the Cincinnati Reds today where Manager Hendricks decreed that the third day of practice would see only one session, from 9 until noon.

The Giants warming up at St. Petersburg, now find only Bill Terry, Ross Young and Ed Roush missing.

CONQUERING OF PRAIRIES THEME OF FINE SPEECH

Dixon Kiwanians Heard Address by DeKalb Man Yesterday

"The Conquest of the Prairies; the Deere Plover, the Marsh Harvester and Barb Wire" was the subject of a very interesting talk before the Dixon Kiwanis club Tuesday afternoon, in which Prof. Edward C. Page of the DeKalb State Teachers college impressed his listeners with the important part northern Illinois has played in the agricultural life of the world. Page has been associated with the DeKalb college for 28 years and has made a long study of the subject which he presented in a most impressive manner. He also brought with him, pictures of the early plow harvesters and many exhibits of barb wire in the early stages of its development up to the present day. He also displayed a two foot long steel angle iron post taken from a German trench, to which a piece of Glidden barb wire was attached, and the post was 29 bullet imprints and holes. This he used to demonstrate the use of which a product developed solely for agriculture had been put.

"History is the progress of man which comes as a result of his thinking and discovering that which he wants and needs. There is no record at this present day of when, where or how fire was first struck. Such information is not necessary it may be said, as we have fire in many improved forms and the record of who discovered it, where and how is of small import."

"At the DeKalb state college, we are developing history and trying to find out how men came to be what they are. In this department we have been able to build up a museum of progress in the life of man."

"Settled in Groves." "Tears ago, the prairies of northern Illinois and eastern Iowa were considered of no use. Early settlers believed that on these prairies trees would not grow, crops would not grow, and because of this belief, they settled in Franklin Grove, Union Grove, Squaw Grove, Washington Grove and numberless other groves. True, there was plenty of grass growing on these prairies, but the settler believed that this was a fire hazard as it burned rapidly when dry and instead of attempting to till the prairie, they cleared small patches in the groves and settled there."

"In 1837, a traveler who passed through this section of the country, wrote a book relating his observations, and in this book said that Illinois would always be a sparsely settled country and that the population would always be scanty because of the prairies. What a vision this writer had!"

"Those who settled in the groves in this section set the seed and the first implement provided for this use was in the form of a plow with a wooden mold board, drawn by oxen. This went to pieces when it was sunk into the earth which for a depth of from five to eight inches was made of tangled roots."

"Planned Steel Plow." "Among those early settlers were some who were hard to convince and when the wooden mold board plow failed to suffice, John Deere at Grand Detour planned a steel plow that would not go to pieces in the ground. His first plow was not the success he had planned, for while it answered the purpose for which it was intended it served to stir up the roots of the heavy growth of grass and the grass grew more prolific. Deere then set about on a new plan. He believed that if the sod could be turned over that the rays of the sun would kill the roots, and with this plan in mind, he shaped a mold board which accomplished this purpose.

"About the same time another man residing in Milan township in DeKalb county, in 1837, built a plow with fingers to turn the sod, but while it accomplished its purpose, the Deere plow was by far the better of the two. That marked the first conquest of the prairies, that of preparing the soil for cultivation. It served to induce population instead of hindering it as had been prophesied. In turn, the Deere plow was found that not only did the sun's rays kill the roots, but that the decayed vegetation served to enrich the soil, but the dirt pulverized as corn meal."

"Then Came Self Ender." "Over at DeKalb, a score 40 miles from where John Deere had built his steel plow, and practically neighbors were the Marsh Brothers, one being a mechanic and the other a genius. They were working on the McCormick reaper which had originated in Virginia. That was about 1850. In that day the grain grower cut his grain with a sickle, dropped it on the ground, came back, raked it up and tied it in bundles and so on until the harvest. The Marsh brothers believed that with the McCormick reaper, a table could be made to plant, grow and harvest grain on this table, grain tied in bundles. Others soon became aware of the importance of such an advance and a knot tying device was patented with the result that the self binder was introduced into this prairie land, enabling man to plant, grow and harvest grain on a large scale. Both of these inventions developed in this northern Illinois country and within 40 miles of each other. It may be interesting to know that there is not a single Marsh harvester in existence today so far as is known."

"Wire Fence Was Next." "With these two obstacles of the conquest of the Illinois prairies overcome, another stumbling block presented itself. The plow and harvester had enabled the farmer to expand from a few acres to large acreage of grain. It became apparent that these Illinois prairies were easily adapted to stock as well as grain raising, but the problem that next confronted the farmer was that of a cheap and stable fencing. Illinois prairie men did not abound in rocks with which to throw

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

GARRETT FOLSOM is stabbed to death while swimming at Ocean Town, N. J.

Folsom's bathing companions had been ROBERT SEVILLE, a business partner; MRS. HELEN BARNARD and CARMELITA VALDOR.

ANASTASIA FOLSOM, eccentric and masterful sister of the dead man, arrives and takes command. At the request of the police, she is taken to the police station.

It is learned that one CROYDON SEARS is a teacher of endurance. He admits having two knives but not the phlegm.

ANASTASIA engages TITUS RIGGS, an architect, to work on the case. DAN PELTON, the dead man's nephew, arrives and is informed by some curious French dolls in Folsom's room.

Croydon Sears' initials are discovered in a notebook of Folsom's and Pelton thinks his uncle had been doing some blackmailing.

ROBIN SEARS, Croydon's son, is worried over the fact that he is resting on his father. RIGGS tells him he has learned that Croydon Sears had purchased a third dagger.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXIII

THEN my father had a good reason for not mentioning the third. Robin Sears said promptly. "And is that third weapon the one that pierced the body of Garrett Folsom, when my father was several hundred feet away?"

"Now, Robin," Angel Fair said, her eyes full of understanding, but her lips setting themselves to a firm line, "don't take it that way. I mean, we all know and appreciate your resentment and your indignation, but they won't get us anywhere. Let's hear all Mr. Riggs can tell us, and then go to work on this new evidence."

The Riggs looked at her admiringly.

"Atta girl!" he said. "You're right," said Robin, his eyes suddenly opened. "That's Dad's attitude—high and mighty scornful, above-suspicion gesture. All right, Riggs, just how far is this suspicion voiced and by whom?"

"The police don't voice it audibly, but it's like a distant rumble of thunder and all that sort of thing. They are gathering a little more evidence and then they propose to come out in the open and declare their beliefs."

"That my father killed Mr. Folsom?"

"It may come to that."

"And the motive?"

"They expect to get that later. You see, if they get circumstantial evidence pretty firmly established, they go ahead."

Robin thought a moment.

"Then I have two things to do—I mean right now. I must hunt that green bather that Dad said can prove he was not near Folsom, and I must interview the auction man. Which will you do, Angel?"

"I'll go along the beach," she said, at once, "and see if I see our verdant friend. You get dressed and take up the auction end of it, and we'll meet at lunch."

"Right," said Robin. "Good hunting."

The girl swung off down the beach, a shining figure in her bright colored garb, and Robin turned to Riggs.

"I don't get it," he said, simply, "but Angel's right. It's no time to stand around and say 'How dare you, sir!' It's time for action."

"Why not go straight to your father and put it to him?"

"Well, you see," Robin smiled. "Angel hasn't spoken to him as she did to me, and he's still to the high-bat stage. He'd say, 'My son, we Seares don't commit murder,' and let it go at that.

In fact it is guaranteed to stop night coughs or sore throat within 15 minutes or money back. Contains no chloroform, dope or other harmful drugs, pleasant taste and safe. 35c., 60c. and $1.00. ## Housewives Prefer "Quick Fire Coke" For Home Heat

It is a Clean Fuel

This clean, dustless, smokeless fuel is lighter and easier to handle, and gives greater and steadier heat than soft coal.

"QUICK FIRE COKE" is such a clean fuel that every housewife who burns it prides herself on the cleanliness of her spotless curtains, rugs and draperies, and clean walls.

She doesn't like coal dust and ashes "tracked" up from the basement over her floors and rugs every time the furnace is fixed.

From experience she knows that when burning "QUICK FIRE COKE" the furnace will not puff clouds of smoke and soot, to the ruin of her house furnishings and decorations.

When ordering coke for your winter supply, remember "QUICK FIRE COKE" is not a mere trade-mark, but a guarantee of efficiency, quality and service. Order by the registered trade name of "QUICK FIRE COKE" and insist upon having it and none other. It is made by the Indiana Consumers Gas and By-Products Co., Terre Haute, Ind., under its own exclusive, special formula, perfected by years of experience and actual tests in all extremes of weather, and all sorts of home-heating furnaces. It is processed from the very highest quality Eastern bituminous coals, carefully tested and selected to produce a by-product coke that will hold fire longest and give the steadiest most uniform heat, with little ash, and practically no dirt nor dust. It is the superior fuel, cheaper than hard coal, and will give more heat, ton for ton, than either hard or soft coal. It does not deteriorate in storage, whether in bins or out in the open, as does soft coal. Thus one should put in his winter supply during the low-priced summer period and make an extra saving in fuel cost, but even now at Winter prices one may save considerable over the cost of coal. Write today for free booklet on "How to Burn Coke."

"QUICK FIRE COKE" is sold and recommended by
